We have started teaching some of the children how to sew. Mivelore and Experiantha are making their own clothes now and we are very proud of their progress.

With this skill and the sewing equipment, we have also developed a relationship with Annie's Hope.

Annie's Hope is a non-profit focused on providing needed sanitary pads for third world county girls and women who otherwise cannot attend school during their period. We are receiving the kits, sewing the pads together at the orphanage and distributing them to girls that need them in Haiti. May God bless our efforts. You can read more about this effort at <https://www.shareannieshope.org/>

Otherwise, school started very late this year because of the Corona Virus, but we were able to start the school year in December. The children are doing well and we are back in a learning mode.

As a reminder, if you shop online, please start using Smile.Amazon.com instead of going to directly to Amazon.com. This Amazon's way of giving back to non-profit, charitable organizations. When you use Smile.Amazon.com, choose "Relief for Kids in Haiti" as your charitable organization, then we will receive a check for half a percent of everything that you spend on Amazon.

We continue to pray for you health and safety during this pandemic time. Please join me in praying for the children of Haiti.
